

Hello,

In regards to a broadcast service called LPFM (Low Power FM), it is my understanding that the FCC is proposing to let LPFM take priority over current FM translator services, such as those that service my favorite radio station, KLove radio.

Please keep (listener-supported) KLove radio on the air. It is the only Christian FM station I can receive in Tucson, AZ, on 105.5 (and 100.5). I have been listening to this particular station almost exclusively for the last seven years. I appreciate this music and the heart-warming news stories much more than the rock and roll I used to listen to, such as Van Halen or ACDC.

Without this station's presence to be a Godsend to those who listen to and share this station's words and music with other people, I am of the firm opinion that our community (as well as other communities across the nation) that support KLove radio will not and can not be replaced with anything better.

Sincerely,
John Conant, Jr.
